

Microdermabrasion and Chemical Peels

While laser addresses the deep issues, there are treatments for surface complaints, including microdermabrasion and various chemical peels.

Acne, congestion and a build-up of dead skin cells can dull the appearance of healthy skin. Treatments designed to clear these away can reveal the newer, fresh skin cells underneath – skin you already have, just waiting to be uncovered. Surface skin is buffed away through an exfoliation process called microdermabrasion.

Similarly, chemical peels remove the surface layer, but through the practiced application of acids to the skin to safely dissolve the unwanted cells and stimulate the growth of new ones.

The chemical peels offered at Skin Deep Aesthetics Hervey Bay are safe and effective when administered by a trained professional. They are not appropriate for all skin types or conditions.

Microdermabrasion is suitable for all skin types but your clinician will advise whether it is the best mode of treatment for particular complaints.
